SPOT-THE-DIFFERENCE

Competition

BarnaBee is buzzing about again with yet more fun. He is a really busy bee always having a good time flying his kite, sitting in the sun or listening to his favourite pop music.

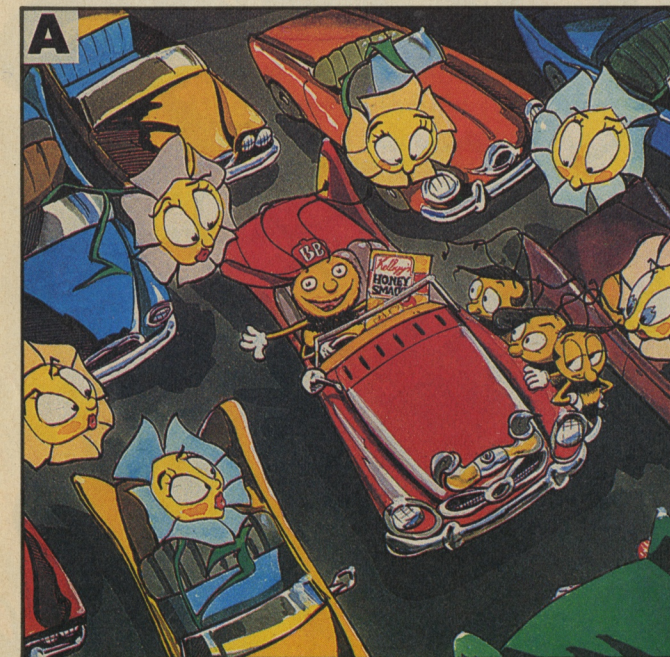

BarnaBee is the trendiest bee that you will ever meet. Wearing his personal stereo, sunglasses and very own BarnaBee watch he buzzes around like a real cool dude. He has such fun and here is your chance to do just the same. In this KELLOGG'S HONEY SMACKS spot-the-difference competition you could win a fantastic BarnaBee activity kit. It is packed full of prizes. There is a red personal stereo, a BarnaBee watch, a skipping rope, a super red BarnaBee kite and a pair of those trend-setting BarnaBee sunglasses. Now who's going to be the cool dude!

There are five of these super BarnaBee activity kits to be won so read on and find out how to enter...

How to enter

All you have to do is spot the ten differences in the two pictures. Simply study picture A and with a coloured pen circle the changes on picture B. Then cut out picture B and send it with your name and address on the entry form to: Get Along Gang, KELLOGG'S HONEY SMACKS Competition, Harrison Cowley Public Relations Ltd, 60/61 Lionel Street, Birmingham B3 1JF, to arrive no later than 25th March 1986.

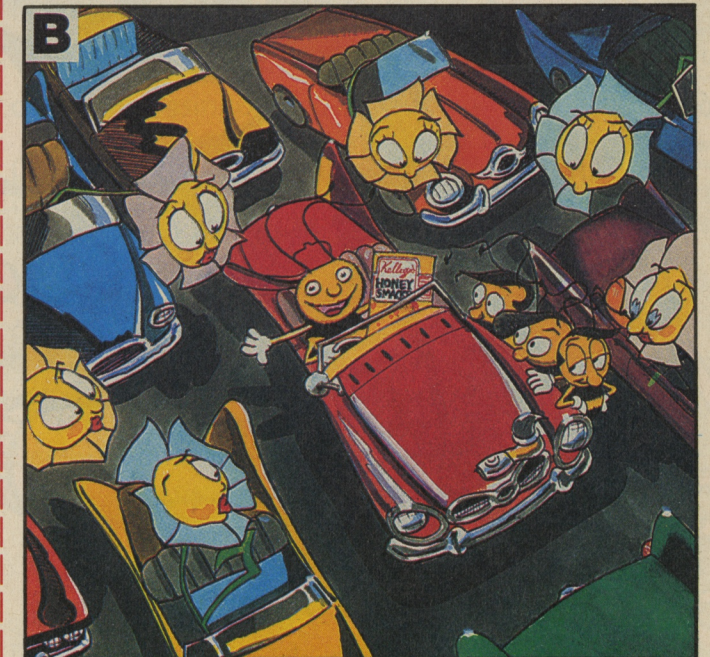

That's not all..

BarnaBee has some fantastic make-your-own badge kits to give away. Anyone who writes their name and address on the back of the top flap from two KELLOGG'S HONEY SMACKS packs, the flap with the 'e' mark next to the weight and sends them with their competition entry form, will get a badge kit absolutely free!

In the kit you will find two blank badges and a sheet of instant lettering so you can have loads of fun designing your very own badges.

Now all that is certainly worth buzzing about.

RULES Entry is free and open to all 'Get-along-Gang' readers with the exception of families and employees of the Kellogg Company of Great Britain Limited and their agents. The Editor's decision will be final and no correspondence will be entered into. The closing date for receipt of entries will be first post on 25th March 1986. Winners will be notified by post.

Happy Mother's Day. Mum!

Catchum's mischievous tricks are about to get him in big trouble with his mum!

The Gang had spent all morning shopping for Mother's Day presents but, back at the Caboose, Montgomery and Zipper quickly left to play in a football match, Dotty hurried away to cheerleader practice, Woolma to ballet, and Bingo to a dentist appointment.

"Huh! Fancy leaving me to wrap all the presents," Portia grumbled. "And then saying the job had to be finished before they get back. Cheek!"

There was a loud rap on the door and Catchum and Leland poked their heads inside the Caboose.

"Portia! Mr Hoofnagel's giving away free ice-cream!" Catchum grinned excitedly.

Portia couldn't believe her ears. "Wow! Lemme at it!" She dashed out of the Caboose and hurried off towards Mr Hoofnagel's shop.

"HAW! Wotta marshmallow-brain!" Catchum snorted when she had gone. "She believed my story. She's even dumber than you, Leland!"

"Thanks," Leland beamed, not realising he had just been insulted. "But if old Hoofnagel's giving away ice-cream, why aren't we getting some?"

Catchum sighed wearily and banged his fist on Leland's head to see if any sawdust fell out. "He isn't really, twerp! I made up that story to get rid of old bristle-bonce." He pushed Leland inside the Caboose and they were soon filling a sack with the presents. "Now we don't have to spend our pocket money on presents for our mums," Catchum grinned. "We'll give 'em the Gang's pressies instead! HAW! HAW!"

"Fancy being substitutes," moaned Zipper as he and Montgomery walked dejectedly back towards the Caboose. "We didn't even get a kick of the ball."

"I was sent home for kicking my teacher in the tummy when I did my pirouette," sulked Woolma, as she and Dotty met the boys. "And Dotty was in trouble for cheering too loud."

"I can't eat any sweets for a month!" Bingo complained, meeting his friends outside the dentist. "We should have stayed with Portia and wrapped the presents."

"EEEEK! WHAT HAVE I DONE?!" Portia stopped in her tracks. "Mr Hoofnagel would never give away free ice-cream – and since when has Catchum been nice to the Gang?"

With a sinking feeling, she hurried back to the Caboose. Her face dropped when she saw the empty table. Just then, the Gang arrived and she had to explain what had happened.

"It's our fault for leaving everything to you," Montgomery said. "To get our presents back we'll have to stick together. C'mon, let's speak to Mr Hoofnagel."

Portia sauntered past Gummyfoot Swamp "SLUURRRRRRRRP!"-ing two giant ice-creams. Catchum and Leland looked at her in disbelief.

"Thanks for telling me about the free ices, Catchum," she called to the astonished croc.

"They're delicious!"

"Waaah! There were free ices!" squealed Leland, hitting Catchum with a soggy lilypad. "Now who's the twerp?"

The two boys sped over to Mr Hoofnagel's, carrying the bag of presents in case some thief pinched them while they were away.

"FREE ICE-CREAMS – FOLLOW THE ARROWS" read a notice. The arrows led them to a high fence around the back of the shop, and then up a plank that had been placed against the fence.

"Hurry!" screeched Catchum, pushing Leland up the plank. "That rotten Portia's probably scoffed most of it by now!"

"WURRRGLE!" screamed the two pests as they tumbled over the fence to land SLURRRGE! in a large basin of poor quality ice-cream Mr Hoofnagel had thrown out. Catchum dropped the bag of presents which landed into the waiting arms of Montgomery, who was standing beside the basin with his friends.

"You can have as much free ice-cream as you like," Woolma laughed. "But I wouldn't eat any in case you get the colly-wobbles!"

"Gurgle! Tricked!" Catchum spluttered, falling out of the basin covered in sticky ice-cream.

"Mr Hoofnagel helped us set our trap," grinned Dotty. "To teach you not to take things that don't belong to you."

When the Gang had left, still laughing merrily, Catchum noticed a prettily-wrapped package on the ground. He snatched it up, eyes gleaming greedily. "HA! Those dopes must have dropped one of their presents. I can still give my mum something without having to spend out."

"Hey! What about me?" grumbled Leland, but Catchum pushed him aside and ran off.

"For me? Thank you, dear." Catchum's mum gave Catchum a slobby wet kiss and opened the present.

"Yuck!" Catchum grumbled to himself. "But I might get extra pocket-money out of this."

"YAAAAAAAHAH!" screamed Catchum's mum as the flower, inside the package, squirted her with water. "You little monster! Wait until I get hold of you!"

"OUCH! YOWL! OOFLE!" Catchum ran around Green Meadow, chased by his mum who kept bonking him on the head with her rolling-pin. The Gang stood watching the fun.

"We left that present behind on purpose," Bingo giggled. "That'll teach Catchum to cheat on Mother's Day."
